ORLANDO - Embattled MetroWest developer Kevin Azzouz did as Judge Karen S. Jenneman of the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Orlando ordered.

He got the power and water turned back on at his Veranda Park office-condo building off Hiawassee Boulevard.

A representative of one of his development companies, VP Phase IV, paid the Orlando Utilities Commission $7,000 against future electric and water bills.

The judge wanted the utilities turned on so that the building wouldn't be at risk of mold or other damage. But the $42,200 or so owed remains unpaid, said OUC spokesman Sheridan Becht
